

MANAGING PARENT-TEEN CONFLICT

The Managing Parent-Teen Conflict class offers constructive ways for parents and teens to learn and practice skills, heal troubled relationships, and provide life-long skills for managing and resolving conflict.

The transition from child to adolescence can be a challenge for most teens. It can also prove to be a challenge for parents. Differences in attitudes, beliefs, values, and needs cause inevitable conflict and can result in disagreements and damaged relationships. Managed effectively, conflict can result in growth, maturity and healthy relationships.
